Useful Collections
Cuala Press Location: Closed Access. Must be requested.
The Cuala Press was founded by Elizabeth Yeats and her brother W.B. Yeats in 1904. It produced works by writers of the Celtic Revival, and numerous works by W.B. Yeats. The collection includes some Dun Emer (an earlier publishing venture run by Elizabeth) imprints.

Dolmen Press Location: Closed Access. Must be requested.
Liam and Josephine Miller founded Dolmen Press in 1951 and items were published until 1987. It initially published Irish poetry but later fiction and critical works on drama and theatre were published.

Radio
December 2011 marks the 50th anniversary of when RTÉ broadcast for the first time and Irish culture and society were irrevocably changed. As part of the commemorations, this book presents a critical overview of the national television station.

Irish Film Society. Irish Film Society: Programme. Dublin: Irish Film Society.

Photobooks

"In 1965, Alen MacWeeney came upon an encampment of itinerants in a waste ground by the Cherry Orchard Fever Hospital outside Dublin. Then called tinkers and later formally styled Travellers by the Irish Government, they were living in beatup caravans, ramshackle sheds, and time-worn tents. MacWeeney was captivated by their independence, individuality, and endurance, despite their bleak circumstances." "Already noted in the United States as a photographer of great sensitivity, MacWeeney became accepted by the Travellers and began to photograph them. In a moving essay in the book, he writes: "Theirs was a bigger way of life than mine, with its daily struggle for survival, compared to my struggle to find images symbolic and representative of that life." Over five years, he spent countless evenings in the Travellers' caravans and by their campfires, drinking tea and listening to their tales, songs, and music."
